Project Introduction and Summary

The European Group of Valuers' Associations (TEGoVA) represents 44 Valuer Associations from every country in Europe. It has published European Valuation Standards "The Blue Book" for a number of years, the seventh edition was published in May 2012 and a further edition is being finalised with a view to being published in 2016.

EVS 2016 is a professional practice manual which is effectively a summary of the accumulated knowledge and experience of European practice and valuation. However, it does not provide practical information on how to conduct a property valuation nor does it provide associated training material.

Funding has been obtained from the ErasmusPlus programme of the European Commission for the project REVASE to develop learning material which will be used both in a training context and as a guide for professional practice in the industry in order to meet this need.
